Pentecost is the grand finale of the Easter Season. We speak of this feast as “the birthday of the church.”

From the time of its completion the Newman chapel was dedicated to “the Holy Spirit” as the large plaque near the song-books indicates. When Newman became a campus ministry parish, it was fitting that it too was dedicated to the Holy Spirit. A Mass of the Holy Spirit is a traditional way to open the academic year—students, faculty and staff gathered with family and friends praying together for the gifts of wisdom, understanding, right judgment, courage, knowledge, reverence and fear of the Lord (wonder and awe).

Recently Newman installed Bose speakers around the chapel so that people could hear with greater clarity. The Acts of Apostles speaks of the gift of tongues—but this had to be accompanied by the gift of hearing—of listening.

Today, (writes Richard Leonard, S.J.) “some people mistake mono for stereo, uniformity for unity.” At Pentecost, the early church recognized that speaking the same language was not as important as carefully listening to each other. “The early church was a very complex and diverse community. Like today, they had their struggles with one another.

“The Second Vatican Council helped us recover the most ancient tradition in our faith, that in various, unexpected and inculturated ways, the Word of God has been present in all peoples, in every culture. We now hold that whenever the gospel has been proclaimed in a new land, it compliments the best in that culture as well as correcting aspects of any culture that oppress, demean and diminish the women and men within it.

“Pentecost faith holds that while we build our faith on the faith of all the believers who have gone before us, we have the responsibility to listen to our contemporary culture and put it into conversation with the gospel. We are not allowed to retreat from the world but are sent out to enter into conversation with it, and hear in this dialogue the symphony God is composing here and now ‘between the treble of our daily life over the continuing base of Christ’s life, death, and resurrection.’”
